GEORGE ALDOFF

George is well on his way to further his name as one of the top ranking rodeo performers by placing second in the saddle bronc riding at Sweet Grass last week. It is expected that George will attend the Coleman Rodeo on July 4.

High Water Force School To Close Basements Filled

Considerable inconvenience & fear of flood was felt here with the heavy runoff and continual rain of last week.

West Coleman and East Coleman suffered the most with water in the basements and some flooding of gardens, although conditions were not as bad as at Blairmore and Frank, nor reaching the flood conditions of Pincher and Lethbridge.

Communications were disrupted when wash out cancelled bus and train through traffic for a time, however mail was kept moving by a transfer of trains at the site of the washout. Coleman residents received prompt service in mail delivery thanks to the efforts of Mr. Masslin who drove to Cowley and picked up the mail, getting it here a couple of hours ahead of expected arrival.

Flooded basement, forced the closing of Cameron school when high waters prevented toilet operating and the making of fires. Pumping began the end of the week and it was hoped school would resume on Monday.

Washout resulted in preventing coal being shipped out with the result that mines were idle. Further layoff resulted when a heavy snow on Tent Mountain stopped work there for a short time.

Civil Defence Exercise Friday

Qualified Participants Receive Badges During Meeting Last Week

Coleman will undergo another air raid and civil defence scheme Friday, June 19. Unlike the operation of a few weeks ago, this major plan will incorporate the services of all sections. The exercise is part of a nation wide scheme but due to the pressure of business Coleman's scheme will take place on Friday rather than Saturday as is the case in other centres.

Controller John McDonald called a meeting of his workers Thursday night to outline the operation and straighten out various matters. It was emphasized that wardens should arrange casualties and refugee problems in order that transport sections and welfare would be presented with working problems. Time was spent ascertaining the location of warden headquarters and radio sets, area were coded and blocks lettered to simplify matters for communications and plotters. For this scheme Carbondale received the code letter A, Willow Drive B, West Coleman C, Center Town D, Hill E, Grafton Town F, Blair-more Road G, and East Coleman H. The latter three areas will not take part in the Friday scheme. The designation per area will facilitate the plotters in locating the problems and arrange for aid without too much delay.

Out of the meeting was learned that the area warden is the headquarters man in the field it is his job to get the information and keep the situation in hand in his area. He must be able to answer all questions without delay. The town centre posed a problem with the need of more workers, the opinion being expressed that this is a vital area yet the residents do not appear to be interested.

Mr. Richards addressed the meeting in regards to communications and stressed the need for simplicity, clarity and the understanding of message priority when sending messages to headquarters. The number of sets available for the scheme and their location was reported by Mr. Richards.

Friday night all sections of Civil Defence met for the presentation of buttons to those who had qualified by attending 12 meetings.

J. McDonald introduced the meeting and congratulated all who took part and the leaders of the various sections. Following this he introduced Mayor Abousafy.

In his remarks Mr. Abousafy mentioned that Coleman had made great progress along the lines of larger cities, and felt that Coleman was better organized than most small centres. He urged the people not to feel that civil defence was unimportant, as should a true peace come it would mean a lot to the people and teach them to be able to co-operate with others.

It is hard, the speaker said, to believe in something that does not seem to exist. Such as preparing for defence when there is no war, or preparing to help others while there is no one needing help. We have to be confronted with misery in order to have compassion.

We can without too much exaggeration, term the Civil Defence system as one of counter action—an organization to train not in killing or destroying but in saving and protecting life and property.

By your training you have become valuable to your town. You have become experts in leading others to rescue in case of necessity.

No town or district can feel immune from accidents, fires, floods and other destructive elements. Anything can happen at any time, collectively or individually and the training you received has made it safer for others to live here.

P. A. Dickieson called upon awardees and presented them with buttons, assisted by Mr. McDonald and Mayor F. Abousafy.

Prime Minister Sets August 10 As Election Day

August 10th has been the date set for the federal election as announced by the prime minister last Friday night. It is expected that local campaigning will soon be underway due to the short nine week campaign.

Cameron School Addition Underway

O. Celli has completed the septic tank, the cesspool and the excavation for the two room addition to Cameron school, as well as tearing out some of the petitions in the basement of the main building.

Seepage from the high rivers resulted in the water coming through the floors of the school on Monday and rising to a height of 18 inches resulting in inability of the janitor to keep fires on and the prevention of use of toilets. School was closed on Tuesday. Water seeped into the new excavation to the depth of four feet. Pumping started on Friday afternoon.

Council Considers Basement Flooding In West Coleman

A delegation from West Coleman waited on town council last Tuesday night regarding flooding of basements due to the high rivers. A letter will be sent to the Director of Water Resources requesting that the matter be looked into with the possibility of dredging the river.

It was felt that the continual moving of the gravel and silt has raised the river bed to such a height that when the river rises it floods in places where floods have never occurred from this trouble before. Drainage being a problem here during the past few weeks, council heard the report of the best site for location of a culvert on Third Street and authorized the start on this project as soon as possible.

Hose Laying Contest Now Has 6 Entries

Coleman Volunteer Fire Brigade draws a large crowd of fans everytime they turn out to practice for the forthcoming southern Alberta Hose Laying competition.

Reports indicate another successful competition this year with teams already entered from Frank, Blairmore, East Coleman, Coleman town. A meeting was held by the brigade on Thursday night when a committee was appointed to make arrangements for the social evening following the days events.

Floats Will Make Parade Highlight Of The Week

Coleman Rodeo parade shows signs of being another top ranking presentation. However, it has been pointed out that this years effort should be the greatest, in keeping with the 50th Anniversary. Floats and plenty of them will help.

The theme of 50 years progress gives a large field for designing floats that could be prize winners.

Mrs Phillips Bereaved

Mrs. Alf Phillips received the sad news of the passing of her mother Mrs. Rachel Hibbert on June 15 in South Wales, British Isles at the age of 77.

Mrs. Hibbert visited here in 1935 and is known by many friends in Coleman.

"Yours TO REMEMBER"

Shown here is part of the rodeo number of "YOURS TO REMEMBER" the sparkling revue of the years '03 to '53 to be presented for your enjoyment by local talent July 1st and 2nd.

This snappy tap routine done to Sioux City Sue will be performed during the rodeo number that tops off the program, representative of Coleman's annual event. Some of the girls took part in the Lions Dancing class of three years ago and are reported to be performing even better than before.

LONG VOYAGE TO A NEW HOME

Just one of many thousands of Europeans who have emigrated to Canada for re-settlement in the post-war years is Alexander Holz, but he was also the 30,000th cleared through the Canadian Christian Council for Resettlement of Refugees. He is shown here (top photo) with his wife and five children just after disembarking from the Canadian Pacific's 9,000-ton immigrant vessel Beaverbrae at Quebec City following a transatlantic voyage from Germany. The Holz family, who made the trip with about 800 other immigrants, then boarded a special Canadian Pacific train which is shown arriving at Lethbridge, Alta., almost the last stop on their long voyage to their new home at Coaldale. On the trans-Canada trip, there was a happy meeting in Winnipeg, Man., as Mr. Holz was introduced to Elizabeth Eck, who was the 10,000th immigrant to come to Canada under the auspices of the C.C.C.R.R. Miss Eck, who arrived in Canada in 1949, was introduced to Mr. Holz by Rev. C. L. Monk, of Winnipeg, executive secretary of Canadian Lutheran World Relief. The three principals in this little drama are shown in the picture at lower right.—Canadian Pacific Railway Photo.

Alkali Patches And How To Treat Them

One of the most insidious problems with which a large number of the farmers of southwestern Manitoba contend is the increasing severity of alkali patches in cultivated fields. Experiments at the Experimental Farms indicate that both chemical fertilizers and barnyard manure give relatively higher response on these slightly saline patches than they do on the more fertile portions of the field. While these treatments are beneficial, they do not constitute a cure and it is probable that many of these areas will become worse in the future.

The fundamental cause of the accumulation of these alkali salts at the surface of the soil, is the evaporation of salt-laden waters. The salts are dissolved in the water as it passes through the soil and are re-deposited at the surface when the moisture evaporates.

The use of forage crops in rotations with cereal crops can do much to reduce the hazard of salinity because forage crops assure that all water entering the soil is used. A two- or three-year rotation of forage and cereal crops does not always assure this during moist years.

Forage mixtures help to prevent run-off and the occurrence of local ponding which is the source of these salt-laden waters. Increasing the organic matter content of the soil by the use of forage mixtures also increases the water-holding capacity of the soil and thus tends to prevent the movement of excess salt-laden water through the soil.

Warn Farmers Wild Animals Have Rabies

DRUMHELLER, Alta. — Farmers and ranchers in the Beynon and Drumheller districts have been warned that a skunk and porcupine, unless they have since died of rabies inflicted by a fox—are still loose in the area and a menace to livestock and other domestic animals.

The fox was beaten to death with an iron bar by Joe Shaft on his farm three miles north of Beynon after the animal attacked a large dog. The dog apparently escaped rabies infection.

Confirmation that the fox was rabid was received here.

District agriculturalist S. Pettit said he has warned farmers and ranchers to be on the alert for other rabies-infected animals in the area. He said indications are that the fox had fought a skunk and porcupine before being killed.

Bougainvillea, the climbing shrub of the four o'clock family, is a native of South America.

MAGIC CHICKEN TURNOVERS

Combine and mix 1½ c. finely-diced cooked chicken, ½ c. medium-thick white sauce. Mix and sift into bowl, 2 c. once-sifted pastry flour (or 1½ c. once-sifted hard-wheat flour), 3 tsp. Magic Baking Powder, ½ tsp. salt, 1 c. granulated sugar. Cut in finely, 3 tbs. shortening. Mix 1 beaten egg and ¼ c. milk. Make a well in dry ingredients, pour in liquid and mix lightly with a fork. Roll dough out to ¼" thickness; cut into 4" squares. Place about 2 tbs. chicken mixture on each square, near corner. Fold dough over diagonally, making triangles. Seal edges by pressing with fork tines; prick tops. Bake on greased pan in hot oven, 450°, 15 min. or until golden brown.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS ARE SAYING:

William Bobyk, Foam Lake farmer made a good paying round on his field recently, while using the oneway — he turned up the wallet he lost while harvesting last fall. The hundred dollars and papers the wallet contained were not harmed by their six months stay under the snow.—The Western Review, Foam Lake, Saskatchewan.

THE LITTLE TOWN

I like to live in a little town, Where the trees meet over the street, Where you wave your hand and say, Hello!

To everyone you meet. I like to pause for a minute, Outside the grocery store, And hear the friendly gossip Of the folks that live next door.

Our lives are intermingled, With the friends we come to know, And I feel their joys and sorrows, As we daily come and go.

Yes, I like to live in a little town, And I care no more to roam, For every house in that little town Is more than a house; it's a home.

Funny and Otherwise

"Ladies and gentlemen," shouted the street performer, "in a few moments I will astonish you by eating coal, stones and nails. I will also swallow a sword, then I will come around with a hat, trusting to get enough of a crust of bread."

"What!" came a voice from the crowd. "Still hungry?"

Rastus had just been presented by his wife with his twelfth child. As the proud father was escorting the doctor to the door a duck passed by.

"Whose duck is that?" asked the doctor.

"That ain't no duck," said Rastus, with a sigh. "That's the stork with its legs worn down."

Johnson says he wears the trousers in his house.

"Perhaps so, but every night after supper he wears an apron over them."

Old lady handing twopenny to tramp: "It's not that I think you deserve it, but for the pleasure I find in giving."

Tramp: "Make it a five, ma'am, and thoroughly enjoy yourself."

A young man and his girl were riding out in the country on horseback. As they stopped, for a rest, the two horses rubbed noses affectionately.

"Ah, me," said the young man, "that is what I'd like to do."

"Well, go ahead," said the girl, "it's your horse."

"It is a positive delight to meet a man who feels you can trust," remarked the individual with the high forehead.

"Oh, I don't know. I prefer a man who pays cash," replied the man who kept the grocery shop.

An estate agent bought his little girl a beautifully furnished doll's house, and on his return after a week's absence asked her how she liked it.

"Oh, it's very nice, Daddy," she replied.

"But where is it, Betty?"

"Oh, I rented it furnished to Cousin Jill for a quarter a week."

Dinah had been having trouble with an ulcerated tooth for some time before she got up enough courage to see a dentist. The moment he touched her tooth she screamed at the top of her lungs.

"What are you making such a racket for?" demanded the doctor.

"Don't you know that I'm a painless dentist?"

"Well, sah," retorted Dinah, "maybe yo' is painless, but ah isn't."

Close to 2,200,000,000 paper napkins are made in Canada each year.

SAVING A LIFE....

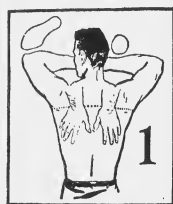

BY ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION BACK PRESSURE-ARM LIFT METHOD

EACH year many people are the victims of asphyxia. A few are saved because of the prompt action of some bystander. Asphyxia need not always be fatal and in an effort to save lives the Canadian Red Cross Society, First Aid-Swimming and Water Safety Service, has supplied the following information in regard to the newly adopted method of artificial respiration.

If breathing stops because of electrocution, drowning, sedative poisoning, gas poisoning, suffocation, or polmonitis, start artificial respiration immediately. Don't delay—seconds count. As soon as possible, send someone for a physician. Have other helpers wrap victim in blankets, apply artificial warmth, remove wet clothing and act as relief operators.

The standard technique for the Back Pressure-Arm Lift method is as follows:

Position of the Subject:

Place the subject in the face-down prone position. Bend his elbows and place the hands one upon the other. Turn his face to one side, placing the cheek upon his hands.

Position of the Operator:

Kneel on either the right or left knee at the head of the subject, facing him. Place the knee at the side of the subject's head, close to the forearm. Place the opposite foot near the elbow. If it is more comfortable, kneel on both knees, one on either side of the subject's head. Place your hands upon the flat top of the subject's back in such a way that the heels lie just below a line running between the armpits. With the tips of the thumbs just touching, spread the fingers downward and outward.

Compression Phase—2 seconds:

Rock forward until the arms are approximately vertical and allow the weight of the upper part of your body to exert slow, steady, even pressure downward upon the hands. This forces air out of the lungs. Your elbows should be kept straight and the pressure exerted almost directly downward on the back. Forty pounds pressure is more than adequate for a normal adult and this should be scaled downward for small people and children.

Expansion Phase—3 seconds:

Release the pressure, avoiding a final thrust, and commence to rock slowly backward. Grasp the subject's arms just above his elbows, and draw his arms upward and toward you. Apply just enough lift to feel resistance and tension at the subject's shoulders. Do not bend your elbows, and as you rock backward the subject's arms will be drawn toward you. Then lower the arms to the ground. This completes the full cycle. The arm lift expands the chest by pulling on the chest muscles, arching the back, and relieving the weight on the chest. To maintain a steady, even rhythm the operator should apply pressure for 2 seconds then lift the arms for 3 seconds. Correct timing can be secured as follows: . . . Apply pressure through counts One Thousand and One, One Thousand and Two—then start lifting victim's arms on One Thousand and Three (and through count) One Thousand and Four, on count One Thousand and Five lower victim's arms and place hands on his back ready for another pressure. The cycle should be repeated 12 times per minute at a steady uniform rate. The compression and expansion phases should occupy about equal time, the changing periods being of minimum duration.

Additional related directions:

It is all-important that artificial respiration, when needed, be started quickly. There should be a slight inclination of the body, if possible, in such way that fluid drains better from the respiratory passage. The head of the subject should be extended, not flexed forward, and the chin should not sag lest obstruction of the respiratory passages occur. A check should be made to ascertain that the tongue or foreign objects are not obstructing the passages. These aspects can be cared for when placing the subject into position or shortly thereafter, between cycles. A smooth rhythm in performing artificial respiration is desirable, but split-second timing is not essential. Skill should receive adequate attention, and the subject should remain recumbent after resuscitation until seen by a physician or until recovery seems assured.

There have been some remarkable recoveries achieved but all too frequently artificial respiration is discontinued after only a short period of application. To guide those who may be called upon to apply this first aid measure, three rules should be remembered. Continue with artificial respiration until the victim breathes of his own accord, or until a physician declares life extinct, (if no physician is available) until rigor mortis sets in. (The stiffening of the body, first noticed in the joints of the arms and legs.)

Those individuals who have been taught the Schafer method have little difficulty in learning the Back Pressure-Arm Lift method. The Schafer Method is still satisfactory and is more adaptable under certain circumstances. Further information on these two methods may be secured from the Canadian Red Cross Society.

3 different Cheese-flavored Treats from One Basic Dough!

Clever one-oven tricks with FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST!

BASIC CHEESE DOUGH

Sift in 2½ cups once-sifted bread flour and beat until smooth and elastic; stir in 1½ cups lightly-packed shredded old cheddar.

Work in 2½ cups more (about) once-sifted bread flour.

Turn out on lightly-floured board and knead dough lightly until smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl and grease top of dough. Cover and set dough in warm place, free from draught, and let rise until doubled in bulk.

Turn out dough on lightly-floured board and knead lightly until smooth. Divide into portions and finish as follows:

1. CHEESE LOAF

Shape half a batch of dough into a loaf and fit into a greased bread pan about 4½ by 8½ inches. Grease top. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375°, about 40 minutes—cover loaf with brown paper during latter part of baking to avoid crust becoming too brown.

2. MARMALADE BRAID

Roll out a quarter of a batch of dough into an 8-inch square on a lightly-floured board; brown dough. Spread with ½ cup marmalade and sprinkle with ½ cup chopped nuts. Roll up jelly-roll fashion; seal edges and ends. Roll out into an oblong 9 inches long and 3 inches wide; brown dough.

3. CHEESE BREAD STICKS

Cut a quarter of a batch of dough into 12 equal-sized pieces and roll, one at a time, into thin strips about 7 inches long. Brush strips with water and roll lightly in cornmeal. Place, well apart, on greased cookie sheet. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk; bake in a moderately hot oven, 375°, about 10 minutes.

Garden Notes

For Amateur Gardeners

IT'S EASIER NOW

The young lady who used to spend most of Saturdays on her knees weeding the lawn had it easier today. That backbreaking job has disappeared. All that is necessary now is to spray with one of the chemical weed killers. A couple of applications about a month apart, (to catch any weeds that may have sprouted after the first application) will keep a lawn practically weed free.

TREAT 'EM ROUGH

Most beginners hate to do some very necessary surgery. Take the bedding plants. These are well-started annuals in both the flower and vegetable line which are grown from seed, sown indoors or in hotbeds, or are bought from the seedsmen or florists, usually about a dozen to the box or flat. The beginner is inclined to set these out without any pinching back, or without even removing flower buds or flowers. If just before or after planting one pinches off quite a lot of the growth, and especially all flowers or buds, one will get much sturdier growth and in the end more flowers or hardiness.

FOR QUALITY

The main thing in getting tenderness in vegetables is to grow them quickly, especially the sorts of which the leaves or roots are eaten. If for some reason growth is checked, especially in the later stages, then more fibre develops and the vegetables become woody. To avoid checks, the experienced gardener pushes his garden with lots of cultivation, watering when necessary and feasible, and using fertilizer either natural or chemical, or both. He will also thin properly so that the plants have room.

HARVESTING TIPS

Within a few weeks the real harvesting of both flower and vegetables should be under way and where there has been a little planning this should go on right through until fall.

With flowers that make the best bouquets, the more we pick the more the blooms. This is especially true with sweet peas, nasturtiums, dahlias, pansies, etc. As a rule it is best to pick or cut these blooms regularly and just as soon as they are open or about to open. If we leave them too long and the flowers start going to seed, all the energy of the plants will go into that and soon blooming will cease. With tiny things like alyssum and other edging plants where picking is not possible, some experts make it a regular practice to shear off the fading bloom with a pair of clippers. Within a few weeks the plants are covered again with fresh blossoms.

With vegetables the aim is to get prime quality. This means getting such things as peas and corn when the quality is right at the peak, a matter of days only. With beets and carrots, and such things there is less rush, as quality remains high for several weeks. With the latter it is a good plan to continue the original thinning, taking out every other plant until the whole row is gone.

Tipping

The suggestion that the restaurant tip be advanced from 10 per cent. to 15 per cent. of the cheque is branded "illogical" by a reader who, with some degree of justice, maintains that the price of food served have risen, there has been a similar advance in 10 per cent. of the cheque. In any event, if you receive good service, tip what you can afford. If the service is bad have the courage to withhold the tip. It is about time it was made clear that the tip is a voluntary expression of appreciation and good will on the part of the customer.

It Could Happen To You

How old is your wife? Don't tell me it is none of my business. However, if she is a grandmother and in her late forties here is something that might interest you. Mrs. Ivy Spencer, 48, and a grandmother of Brighton, Eng., recently gave birth to triplets! So, you see what can happen among the married even when the wife is 48.

Increase Confusion

As to those 700 left-handed men mentioned in the Bible. The Douay version of the Bible (Judges XX:16) says these 700 men threw with the left hand as well as the right. As prices of food served have risen, there has been a similar advance in 10 per cent. of the cheque. In any event, if you receive good service, tip what you can afford. If the service is bad have the courage to withhold the tip. It is about time it was made clear that the tip is a voluntary expression of appreciation and good will on the part of the customer.

For Economy-Minded Housewives

How long does your wife make a pair of nylons last? It is none of my business, but I am informed by a Californian that she has been wearing the same pair of nylons daily for 11 months! She attributes this remarkable record for wear to intelligent buying, careful washing and knowing how to put on a pair of stockings. She says this pair of stockings cost her $1.65.

Automatic Coffee

A Philadelphia is reported to have originated a highly efficient coffee vending machine. It brews fresh coffee which is offered to the buyer four ways: Black, black with sugar, with cream, with cream and sugar. Machine's capacity is 400 cups. Is intended to be used in railroad stations and other public places. Should be a money-maker. Still, according to some restaurant men, when a cup of good coffee is sold for a dime it is "a non-profit item".

Fatal Offing

A reader who has been happily married for 34 years says a marked decrease in domestic discord can be brought about if both husband and wife resolve never to start a sentence with "Why don't you—?" or "Why didn't you—?"

Where Tradition Counts

In Great Britain, prices in guineas are widely quoted by business establishments. Yet, there is no such coin as a guinea in circulation in Britain. There hasn't been a guinea minted in 150 years. Anybody in possession of a guinea considers it a collector's item. Then why use the guinea on price lists? It makes things seem cheaper than they are. Ten guineas is the equivalent of $29.40. Ten pounds is only equal to $28.

When To Sell

Many a man who made a good investment originally is not a millionaire today because he sold too soon. Knowing when to sell is what makes millionaires. Take James Couzens. He invested $2,500 in an automobile company in 1903. Others who invested sold out early in the game. Couzens held on until 1919. Then he sold the stock he had bought with $2,500 for $29,318.85.

For Better Night Driving

Now available are night driving glasses for motorists. Wearing these glasses eliminates being blinded by an oncoming car with lights on full blast. The glasses, a German invention, also improve night vision. Considering all the accidents caused by motorists being blinded by oncoming headlights, the use of these glasses should be compulsory.

In Spring A Lady's Fancy

(Moose Jaw Times-Herald)

When they sit down to dinner in the evening she announces she has bought a new spring hat. She says she is afraid he is going to be shocked when he hears the price. She says that, when she set out in the morning, she was her earnest intention to buy a simple inexpensive hat. She says with that in mind, she trudged through every hat store downtown. She figures she must have walked miles. She would hate to try to guess the number of hats she tried on.

She says she just isn't like other women. They can walk right into a shop and buy a hat that suits them perfectly and one which costs very little. But she can't. She has too much hair. Or maybe it is the shape of her head.

Well, at any rate, after hours of searching she at last found a becoming hat. It was, in fact, just what she wanted. But when she asked the price she was horrified. She felt that a person in her financial situation had no right to buy a hat as expensive as that. It wasn't fair to him.

But, she says, the saleswoman made her see the hat in a new light. She called attention to its quality. She showed how she could alter the trimming and put on new fruits or flowers or a feather or a bow of ribbon and make the hat look a different thing. In that way it could be made to last for two seasons and maybe more.

He reminds her she said the same thing last year. Why didn't she do over last year's hat? She says she started to, but when she took the hat out to do it over it just didn't look right at all.

LIFESAVER — This ram-jet turbine, only 12-inches in diameter, means life instead of death for jet airmen and passengers in case of engine failure. Turning on full power in less than a second, it supplies emergency hydraulic power at high speed.

ODDITIES In The News

Rodeo stunt rider George Burton of San Francisco, said that after he spent 11 months in a hospital with a broken back he decided tricks were "for the birds". Now he "entertains in night clubs with a group of birds that wash clothes, pull wagons, lift weights and do a trapeze act."

A pretty Alaskan Indian girl was filling out a government form at Anchorage, Alaska, which asked for her personal history. In the blank for her "tribe" she wrote: "Half Thlinget, half Coast Guard."

Mrs. Brandt Johnston, of Toronto, who walked 62 miles on her birthday — one for every year — said it was a "cinch" compared to her last six marathons. The 16-hour hike from Beamsville to Toronto was fun, she said, because the fine weather allowed her to break into a run every few yards, or years. Last year she had to tramp 61 miles through rain which never let up. "Not the least bit tired," she said, "I wouldn't be surprised if I'm getting better every year."

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

EXPLAINING PAUL'S CONVERSION

How sudden are conversions? It was as sudden as it seems to be. In his persecuting zeal, Paul was travelling toward Damascus after leaving the scene of Stephen's martyrdom. For some strange reason he had not been active in that over the garments of those who stoned Stephen to death.

The sight of that good man, praying for the forgiveness of his murderers and calling upon Jesus to receive his spirit must have left an impression on Paul which he could not erase. The first effect would be to make him more intense in his persecution of the Christians, kicking against the pricks of conscience and trying to stifle his doubts by becoming all the more furious in his hostility toward the Christians.

But when he was stopped on the road to Damascus, and saw the vision and heard the voice, he knew what it all meant. This was the moment when the light burst through and illumined his soul. But there had been a long period of preparation in the years of religious education and growth. There was another period of immediate preparation which is seen in the various doubts which arose in his mind as he saw the calm heroism and faith of those he was persecuting.

The word "Jesus" had a new meaning for Paul as he heard the voice say: "I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest."

Paul is not the only man to experience this moment of drama in his life. Sincere men have been won over to beliefs which they were studying so that they would be better fitted to attack those beliefs.

Much is possible when men are sincere and in earnest. But there is little hope for the man who is too apathetic to have any convictions at all.

The Sports Clinic

(An official department of Sports College) Conducted by Lloyd "Ace" Percival

Cover That Plate Completely

Many hitters stand at the plate in a position that makes it impossible for them to cover all parts of the plate with their bat as they swing. The most common variation of this fault is standing too far away from the plate thus making it impossible to hit a ball coming over the outside corner. This type of hitter is usually a sucker for a low outside pitch or any delivery that drops or curves away to the outside of the plate. A hitter who stands too far away from the plate never realizes that the ball is going past the end of his bat not underneath or above it. When a hitter stands too close to the plate he cannot hit an inside ball properly because the only part of the bat with which he can hit such a ball is the part near the handle, and as we all know, balls hit in this way aren't usually the kind of hit to give the opposing pitcher any gray hairs. If, at the last moment, the hitter attempts to stop away from the plate to hit an inside pitch, he may hit it but he will not hit it hard very often because when you "pull away" to hit, you aren't getting the power of your body behind your swing.

Here's how you can avoid this fault: take up your usual position and then reach over the plate with your bat, trying to touch the thick end of it to the ground at a spot about two or three inches on the outside of the plate. As you do this bend your knees just enough to make your legs feel free and comfortable. If you can reach past this mark then you are too close. If you can't, you are too far.

Don't reach this mark then you are too far away from the plate.

Remember, check your batting position and make sure you are standing in such a way as to cover all parts of the plate with your swing. If you are a coach, check the position of every player on your team!

Don't Wobble When Sprinting

If, after you have your coach or pal check up on it, and you find that you do wobble—here's what to do: first, make sure you are bringing your knees up straight in front of you. If they come out to the side they will create a bad wobble. Make sure your hands are not coming more than half way across your chest as you drive them up and down in rhythm with your legs. If your arm action is too much across your chest you can correct it by concentrating on keeping your elbows close to your sides as you run. Wobbling is one of the worst faults a sprinter can have. Eliminate it right away.

Recovery Hints Between Track Events

Here are a few hints which, if followed, will help freshen you up for your next event in a track meet. First of all, make sure you keep moving after your hard effort. This helps your body adjust itself gradually to normal. Move your arms around and do a few bending exercises. Next, do some stretching exercises. This is a wonderful recovery trick. Finally, circular rubbing over the heart is a wonderful recovery aid. Make sure you use these methods at your next track meet and notice how much better prepared you are for your next event.

SIMPLE BEAUTIES OF EVERYDAY

I hope that I will always be aware of grace and dignity in simple things of everyday. The beauty of young poplar trees with plumes like feathers to greet the breeze. Arrests me on my homeward way. The jeweled water sparkling bright in neighboring fields within my sight. Were recently the spring's last snow; The color, just so lately seen by roadside streams—a brave new green.

And buds on the lilac row. All these and many more I see spread out in gallant pagentry on earth's awakening breast. When, too, the songs of birds I hear mingled with laughter children's clear.

I know I'm richly blest.

Dad Is King On Sunday

THANKS DAD

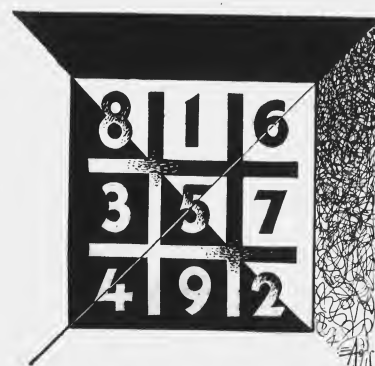

It's funny how it took all the years of growing up to find out that Fathers are really people, just like anyone else.

When you are young, really young, mother sort of monopolizes your attention. Then comes the time when Dad begins to take shape as something more than the fellow that comes home after work and reads the paper or tells you that you can't do this or that. There comes the day that Dad plays catch with you, or brings home a bike that he is often called upon to fix for you from time to time. Or maybe it is when you go on a fishing trip or shooting together, or later when he lets you take the car for the evening that Dad becomes a reality.

But you're grown up now. You know that Father was as human as the rest—that he is hungry for appreciation, and thanks and love. Be glad that it isn't too late to give it to him.

During the past few months several new names have cropped up on the playbills of CBC dramatic productions. The majority of these new radio voices are Canadian, but there are a few like Patrick MacNee (above) who are making a new life for themselves in Canadian radio after gaining experience in England. MacNee has been able to show his acting abilities on a variety of programs including Stage 53, CBC Wednesday Night, and Ford Theatre. Bruce Beffrage, Barry Morse, and Catherine Blake are a few more of those who have made a name for themselves in radio, films and television in Britain, and are now adding their talents to those of Canadian actors and actresses.

SCOUT NEWS

Come On Out/
by Michael Hill

The 1st Coleman Scout troop met May 26 in the Anglican Hall, the evening opening with the breaking of the flag, the patrol leaders then seeing that their respective patrols had learned their tenderfoot tests. It was decided that some scouts would meet Sunday and take a hike up Saskatoon Mountain to gather wood for a bonfire in celebration of the Coronation. Also brought up for discussion was the plans for the bottle drive. Beginning June 8, the scouts will have a door to door canvass for bottles. With the money we hope to be able to purchase uniforms in time for the rodeo. The meeting was closed with the lowering of the Union Jack.

On June 2 patrol leaders Jerry Lonsbury and Michael Hill met in the schoolyard to take part in the parade. They carried flags and represented the Coleman Scout troop. In the evening five boys and scout leader F. DeCecco started the hike up Saskatoon Mountain where a huge bonfire was lit. We hoped that this would be seen in all parts of town. Around the fire we placed three red flares.

Last week work was successfully begun on the hall that the town gave us and also the land around it. Although it may take quite a while we hope to have a nice club house, a place to play and a parade square around it.

We hope that the Scouts, Brownies and Cubs turn out to make scouting and guiding a very successful movement. The scouts are grateful for the well wishes of the Brownies and wish to thank them for the message in their Brownie News.

The scouts wish her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II a long and happy reign. "God Save the Queen."

Editors note: With this the second scout column received and the Brownies making a weekly newsletter we still retain hopes that the Cubs will see fit to use our columns. For a year this organization has been offered space in the Journal but news is not forthcoming.

Of Many Things

by Ambrose Hills

Five years ago, at a reunion party, I was stuck in a corner with an old classmate named Hank. I don't remember ever having been so bored. Hank had a notion the world was against him. He had several notions—all of them gloomy. I promised myself that next time I saw Hank coming my way, I'd escape if I had to dig a tunnel to hide in. Yesterday, in a crowded restaurant, I looked up from my plate and there, at the table for two, staring right at me, was Hank. I looked down quickly and hoped against hope that he hadn't recognized me.

There was a silence that lasted only a few minutes. Then I heard Hank chuckle. That, in itself, was something new! Hank, as I remembered him hadn't room in him for a smile, let alone a chuckle.

"Hey, freckles," he said, giving me my school-boy nickname, "don't pretend you've forgotten me!"

I looked up and I'm afraid I blushed. "Why, of all people," I said. "If it isn't old Hank!" "I'll let that go, you hypocrite," he grinned. "You knew me well enough—but I don't blame you. I think I recall giving you the gloom treatment a couple of years back at the class reunion."

"You weren't too cheerful," I admitted. "That's changed," he said. "Maybe I'm still a bore, but I'm a cheerful bore."

I wondered if a rich uncle had died or something, but apparently it was nothing like that. It was a surprising story, but a true one.

Hank told me about a year ago he'd finally spread so much gloom that he hadn't a friend left who'd supply a shoulder to cry on. And he'd gotten so badly behind in his sales quotas that he was about to be fired. Then he read two things that clicked in his mind. One was Abe Lincoln's old saw that the average man is about as happy as he sets out to be. The other was a bit of psychology by William James who said we don't run because we're afraid—we're afraid because we run.

"So I started to put on an act," Hank said. "I pretended I was happy. And dammit all, the first thing I knew I was."

"Look," I said, "how's about coming out to the house tonight to visit with me and the wife?" "Sorry," Hank said. "Jim Carter has asked me to his place tonight, and I'm invited to Blake's on Friday."

"How about Saturday?" "Swell," he said. "I'll be there." We hope so. We're looking forward to Hank's visit. It seems hard to believe that he used to be a bore. We hope a lot of gloomy gusses who think the world is against them will follow in Hank's footsteps. Maybe they're unhappy only because they act that way! If so, it's time for a new act!

Poison Ivy Days

This is the season when thousands of children and adults across Canada break out into a blistering itchy rash. The cause—a "leafless," waxy looking plant called poison ivy.

Eradication of the plant itself is the best cure for ivy poisoning, states G. R. Snyder of C-I-L's agricultural chemicals department. In June, when the plant is in its early stages of growth, it can best be controlled by use of an ester formulation of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T in water. About a teaspoonful of spreader sticker should be used in each gallon of water to make sure the chemical brushkiller penetrates the waxy surface.

When leaves reach full maturity in July, "Ammate" weed-killer is the most effective chemical. CMU may also be employed to make a complete kill along fences.

Ball News

Bill Plante
and
Bob Ryplen

Coleman High School Cubs finished their home and home series with a 12-4 win in the Blairmore Stadium. Coleman proudly took the opener 14-2 in Coleman. A good attendance turned out to see the local lads go down before a 12 hit Coleman onslaught.

Coleman held an early 1-0 lead which vanished in the second frame, and then brought in five runs in the third to wrap up the game. Saloff whiffed ten opposing batters and allowed only six hits, however temporary wildness with nine walks given was the big liability. Ferot went the route for Blairmore, but was tagged for safeties throughout the contest. Adam Kryczka and John Nowasad pitched three and four hits respectively to lead the attack. Kryczka homered and Nowasad got a triple while Maniquet bagged a homer for Blairmore.

Footnotes

Adam Kryczka made his debut with Coleman by clouting a homer, a triple and a double in six times at bat. . . . John Nowasad rapped a triple and three other base blows for the Cubs. . . . Stan Saloff wrapped up his second straight win of the year behind a strong Coleman drive. . . . Saloff is proving his pitching ability and should make a season's standout player with the current edition of the senior Cubs.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS THREE STRAIGHT AS PINCHER BOWS 10-6

Walter Tymchyna pitched three hit ball as Coleman clicked for 8 hits and blasted two Pincher pitchers for 10 runs. A very steady infield who came up with a double play and three pickoffs aided considerably in the win.

John Nowasad again led the Coleman crew batting a .666 clip in the contest. Tom Hazuka drove in a homer to highlight the game. Cyr led Pincher, collecting all three club hits including a tremendous homer with one on in the 8th.

Footnotes

Walter Tymchyna made his pitching start a winning one while striking out 11 batters over the route. . . . Tommy Hazuka again proved that he could pole the long ball as he smashed out a solo effort in the 5th. . . . this High School club has won three straight and appear to be going to have a very successful season. Come on Coleman get out there and support the boys. Other clubs are getting successful attendance. Why can't we do the same?

Teacher Shortage--- Best Brains at Stake

(By Dr. H. E. Smith, Dean, Faculty of Education)

Some say the Composite school will destroy the best brains in our society. Others say it is the only democratic and proper answer to the demand for universal high school education. Possibly in this case both points of view may be true. It may be that you can't at the same time stimulate the best brains and satisfy mediocre talent in a common high school. If the curriculum must be watered down to the level of the average student, obviously the brighter minds will suffer. On the contrary, if adolescent youth were segregated on the basis of mental capacity into schools of different types, what then would become of the honored principle of equality? We seem to be faced with a hard dilemma.

The secondary schools of England are of three rather clearly differentiated types. The Grammar school takes at the age of twelve, and on the basis of sharply cutting tests, the academically minded & the brightest pupils. These are set on the road to University and other institutions of the most advanced training. The Junior Technical

School is open to twelve-year-olds with a bent for manual arts. Many of its graduates will go into industry at fifteen or sixteen, and some will go forward to various institutions of somewhat specialized training in vocational fields. The third type, the Modern School, will receive the great mass of twelve-year-olds and give them educational opportunities similar to those offered in our composite schools. But few can expect admission to universities because the program lacks rigor and intensity. Many of the critics of our own composite school contend that it lacks rigor and intensity. The bright pupils, they assert, have not been challenged, have never been pressed to discover their powers, have learned to be satisfied with only their second or third best.

Our Canadian universities are saying this too. But can the English system be squared with our conception of democracy? Will Canadian parents submit to a segregation of their children into institutions of contracting level? Our answer at present seems to be "no". The composite school is itself the answer.

This is but one of many basic problems in Canadian education. The field needs not only many teachers for the everyday work of the schools. It needs also many teachers and many citizens willing to tackle basic issues in education. Here at least is one challenge to our best brains.

A.A.R.N. Meeting

The monthly meeting of the C.N.P. chapter of the A.A.R.N. met at the home of Mrs. E. Bruning, Blairmore, June 5. Reports of the annual convention at Banff were given by Mary Kukuk, Alice Vejprava and E. Bruning. Treasurer Alice Lord reported on the recent Baking Sale and raffle which were most successful. Miss H. Glenis reported that John McDonald Civil Defence Co-ordinator has asked for the co-operation of 12 to 18 nurses at the civil defence exercises June 19. Ten nurses volunteered at the meeting and others not present would be available. No meetings will be held in July and August.

HAPPY REUNION—Associated Press correspondent William Oatis puts his arm around his wife as they face a battery of radio microphones following the freed newsmen's flight from Germany. Oatis was released May 16th after spending two years in a Czech prison on a charge of being a U.S. spy.

WEDDING GUESTS—Princess Margaret has a smile for Prince Bertil, of Sweden, as they leave the church at Asker, near Oslo, following the wedding of Princess Ragnhild of Norway and Erling Svend Lorentzen, a commoner. Princess Ragnhild is the daughter of Crown Prince Olav and granddaughter of King Haakon II of Norway.

BREAKS TWO WORLD RECORDS—Speed Flier Jacqueline Cochran stands in front of the Canadian-built F-86E Sabre jet in which she broke two world records at Edwards Air Force Base by flying around a 12 pylon course at an average speed of 652.337 miles per hour. She shattered the women's jet speed record of 535 m.p.h. held by Mme. Jacqueline Auro, of France, and the all-time jet record of 635 m.p.h. for 100-kilometer course, made by Col. Fred Ascani, U.S. Air Force. In the photo above, Miss Cochran brings her jet in for a landing after being the first woman to fly through the sonic barrier.

AERIAL SIDE CAR—Covered with a plastic hood, this wounded G.I. is being readied for a trip to a rear area somewhere in Korea. Stretcherers fit into specially constructed side attachments of the helicopter and ride the air comfortably. This casualty victim is receiving blood plasma before making the trip.

FATHER LENDS A HAND—A unique father-son team will be broken up soon when Pte. Roger Blais leaves for Korea. Blais, 19, and his 42-year-old father, Pte. Leopold Blais, of Montreal, are both paratroopers and members of the Royal 22nd Regiment, the famous "Van Doos". Army authorities claim that the combination is unique in the Canadian army. Leopold has been a soldier since 1939, and Roger counts 15 months' service. Both are stationed at Valcartier Camp, near here. Just a year ago, the father was refused permission to go to Korea, on account of his age; now he is confident his son can take the place he hoped to fill in the ranks of the unit. When Roger leaves with the 3rd Battalion for Korea, his father will have two regrets—that he isn't able to go himself and that they've never made a jump together.

BLIND SPOT SPOTTERS—Acting on the premise that color blindness is affected by abnormal conditions of the optic nerve, two William Smith College co-eds, Helen Gardner at left, and Teresa Mondy, map the color fields of Hobart College professor Shelton MacLeod, in Geneva, N.Y. They discovered color blindness is accompanied by irregularly shaped blind spots.

$3,000 HUG AND SMILE—That's what Cary Middlecoff, of Memphis, Tenn., added to his season's golf earnings by winning the Round Robin tournament at the Meadowbrook Golf Club, Westbury, Long Island, N.Y. The 32-year-old dentist clinched the rich first prize with a four-under-par 66 in the final round, winding up with a 42-point total plus Jimmy Demaret finished second with 39 plus points. Cary, who is hugging the championship trophy, is a member of the United States team that meets the Canadian professional squad in the Hopkins Trophy International Matches at Beaconsfield on June 5, 6 and 7.

The word cravat comes from the name of a French regiment, the Royal Cravattes.

A Roman slave, when freed, wore a ring of iron and gold rings were badges of citizenship.

Here's the Answer

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

DEEP WITHIN MY HEART

By LEIGH HAYDEN

MAUD HAWKINS lifted one of the apples from the pan and smelled it. Heavenly! It took her back to childhood, the happiness of which, in memory, was more real to her than the tragedy of her married life. She smiled as she thought of her boarders—and of what her friends would say if they knew she was matchmaking again! But these two were just made for each other! Steve, a grocer, a widower—the home-loving type. And Ann, a stenographer. That was all Maud knew about Ann—but what a pair they'd make! Good-looking! Steve tall, dark, always smiling. Ann, blue-eyed and blonde. But Steve wasted his time at home following Maud around, helping her in the garden, when he might be getting acquainted with Ann.

Maud sliced the apples into the lower crust, covered them with sugar and cinnamon, put the top crust on, and popped the pie into the oven. Time to start dinner!

As she pushed a lock of brown hair off her forehead, a thought struck her. She felt in her apron pocket. No, it wasn't there! What had she done with it? She was in Steve's room dusting when the idea for the greeting card verse came to her, and she sat on his bed to write it down. And then the "phone had rung! Maybe she could remember it. She'd like to get it and some others in the mail to a greeting card company. Fifty cents a line added up to quite a bit! How did it go?

"My Secret Love,
"Deep within my heart I hide
Dreams of you right by my side.
Won't you, by some written sign,
Let me know that you'll be mine?"
That was it.

The war-lance used by medieval knights was about 16 feet long.

She heard Ann's light footsteps on the stairs, going up to her room, and soon Steve came in and went up. At dinner, once Maud looked up suddenly and caught a puzzled expression on Steve's face as he turned from watching her to study Ann. Maud excused herself and left the room. "I was talking into buying these two tickets to the Puyallup Fair," she said, as she came back, "and I can't go. It's a shame to waste them. Tomorrow is Sunday. Why don't you two take my car and drive over?"

"That's sweet of you," said Ann. "I think it'd be fun!" But Steve shook his head. To Maud, he said, "You need a change. If you'll go, I'll drive you both over." So it was settled.

Next morning, Steve seated himself behind the wheel of the car, suggesting in a bantering tone to Maud, who was climbing into the back seat, that he thought the ride would be more enjoyable if she sat by his side. "Oh, no, I want Ann to sit up there. She'll get a better view of the countryside. I don't think she's been to Puyallup before."

Just then Ann came running down the walk. "I won't be able to go to the Fair," she said, breathlessly. "I just got a phone call, and I have to meet someone coming in from Tacoma."

"Maybe I'd better stay home and cook dinner for you and your company," offered Maud.

"Oh, no, you go on," Ann answered. Steve, with a worldly-wise look, grinned at Ann, then said to Maud, "If we two are going to Puyallup alone, wouldn't it be less formal if you sat up here with me, Mrs. Hawkins?" Maud moved into the front seat.

Steve paid strict attention to his driving, and Maud couldn't think of anything to say. This hadn't worked out right. She'd have to figure out another way to get them together. Then she remembered she needed one more greeting card verse to send with the batch tomorrow. Out of her purse she drew a pad and pencil, and was soon writing furiously. "Apple pie recipes?" Steve asked. "No," she said, "greeting card verses." Steve burst into a hearty laugh. "So that's it!" he said, "and all the time I thought it was meant for me!" "Deep within my heart I hide Dreams of you right by my side," he quoted. Maud's face turned crimson. "Where did you get that?" she asked.

"In the hall, in front of my door. I wasn't sure who left it there for me," said Steve.

"Oh!" said Maud, the picture of mortification. "I must have dropped it when I ran to answer the phone." Maud was so embarrassed, wondering what Steve was thinking, that most of the displays at the Fair were wasted on her. Once she blurted out, "I really intended Ann should be with you today. Don't you think she's a lovely girl?" She'll make somebody a fine wife!

"Yes," said Steve, "that's what the fellow who was coming over from Tacoma thinks."

Maud, trying to cover her confusion, said, "Look at that beautiful Jonathan apple display!"

"By the way," said Steve, "that was a mighty good pie you made last night. Jonathans, weren't they?"

"Yes," she answered.

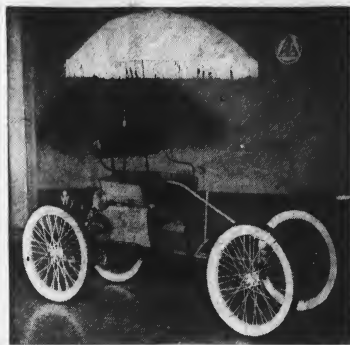

"You know," said Steve, "I think it'd be right nice if we bought a couple Jonathan apple trees and planted them in the back yard. In a few years we'd have all the apples we needed for pies. The ones we couldn't use at home, I could sell at the store."

When they went home that night, there were two Jonathan trees in the back of the car.

CANADA'S FINEST CIGARETTE

AUTOMOBILE like the above and some 35 others, are operating in Canada today (mainly in Montreal and Toronto) because a group of nine men have combined nostalgia and a love of mechanics to keep the automobile past alive. They have banded together into the Duster and Goggles Club. There are three clubs in the United States made up of men dedicated to rebuilding and preserving the pioneer automobile models, but the "Duster and Goggles" is the only such club in Canada. While these men have the standard early models—a French Delahaye Wagonette, built in 1895; a 1902 Rambler, the forerunner of the present-day Nash; a 1902 Cadillac which took two years to rebuild and now runs like an expensive watch—their main aim is to find and rebuild early models of Canadian cars.

JACK RABBIT
ATTACKS TRUCK

CALGARY, Alta. — A rabbit attacked a three-ton truck. Coal miners Gus and William Wisk said they saw the 12-pound jack rabbit cross a road ahead of them, then veer back and "attack" their truck.

It missed, and the force of its charge carried it into a field beside the road.

Then the oversized bunny tried again. It leaped high and crashed through a closed window of the cab. One of the Wisks grabbed it and threw it to the floor of the cab where it died.

Veterinarians said the rabbit apparently was maddened with rabies.

The Wisks were treated at a hospital for possible rabies infection.

Increasing Need
For Safe Farm
Practices Urged

REGINA.—The increasing need for safe farm practices is emphasized by figures on 1952 farm deaths reported by the Division of Health Education, Saskatchewan Department of Public Health.

According to a survey of accidental deaths in Saskatchewan conducted by the Research and Statistics Division, 104 farm residents died in mishaps occurring in farm homes, farm yards and in the fields last year. This represents an increase of 30 farm deaths compared with the previous year.

The survey, carried out in connection with the provincial department's Home and Farm Safety Program, revealed that 49 per cent. of all accidental deaths in the province in 1952 occurred in Saskatchewan homes, both urban and rural, and on Saskatchewan farms.

As in 1951, tractor accidents continued to head the list with a total of 30 farm persons killed. Of these 13 deaths occurred in tractor upsets and five persons were run over. The remaining fatal tractor accidents involved persons thrown off and pinned under tractors, gasoline explosions and mishaps with power take-offs.

Fires in farm homes, out-buildings, and in fields, ranked second in causes of accidental death among farm residents. Last year there were 26 deaths in farm fires of a total of 26 fire deaths for the province as a whole. In 1951 the farm fire toll was 23 of a total of 34 Saskatchewan fire fatalities.

Harvest accidents involving combines, swathers and threshing machines were third cause of farm deaths last year with accidents in farm homes next in rank. The latter included fatalities occurring in falls, children scalded and drownings.

In spite of the increasing mechanization of Saskatchewan farms, accidents with horses accounted for eight farm deaths last year. Grain augers, balers and tillers were responsible for seven deaths.

Other farm fatalities included accidents with firearms, drownings in wells, creeks and dugouts, motor vehicle accidents in the yard and fields, electrocutions, sunstroke, smothering in wheat and a fall from a windmill.

Ranchers Find
Wolves Costly

WEEKS, Sask.—Wolves continue to take toll of purebred livestock on the P.V. ranch here. The owners, George and Arthur White, estimate each 100 bounty for a wolf killed actually means $200 in relation to livestock saved.

"Old Three Toes" Famed Grizzly
Of Rockies, Felled By Scribe

VANCOUVER — Old Three Toes, British Columbia's No. 1 bad grizzly, is dead.

Lee Straight, outdoor editor of the Vancouver Sun, told of his one-shot kill of the eight-foot, half-ton Bruin. He wrote:

"My bear came into his meal—a rotten, stinking, fly-blown, winter-killed moose—before dark on the second night and I no sooner recognized him than I shot and made him a trophy that I'll be proud of all my days."

By his side for the northland kill on the banks of the McGregor was Walter J. Henry of Vancouver and Prince George, sportsman hunter. Another companion and experienced hunter was Chuck Ennis, Henry's business partner, six-foot-three ex-Tennessean.

Lee was perched in his "blind" when the notorious Three Toes showed up as a blob in the forest darkness. "I trembled—vibrated is a better word—and quietly shook the blind for a good 15 minutes. Sounds over-dramatic, but it's understatement if anything."

Wait had said "if he comes in the night, shine the flashlight and don't let him feed. Or he may not come back for days. Don't go taking potshots at him in the dark."

So when Lee saw the bear during his first night in the blind, he flashed his light frantically.

"Then he fled discreetly with a rustle and a snort."

Lee crouched in his blind for most of two days and "felt quite the veteran tree dweller."

Then, just before complete darkness on the second night, Three Toes appeared again.

"He was a huge bear, grey-brown and silver-crested in the twilight of the forest edge . . . the big 8 millimeter Magnum rifle roared and spat orange in the dusk. I never rattled about or re-aimed faster. But it was over."
